epecial interest to all Oregonians, and, unleed, to all americans, because of his patriota nature and efforts to preserve this region to the United States. All his life was admirable, and the remeetiand confidence shown him by Dr. Larg life and other gest-enen connected with the Judson's Hay company, is evidence of his character as a man These were all opposed to his piews politically and many were of different thus falth. That they respected him, as religious lains in and give him their confidence in many matters, shows how superior he must have been to mere temporal differences, as it also shows that Dr McLaughlin and his con freres appreciated true chanhood in one entirely opposed to the interests they were not only iden

I approach this point of history with residence, because it incolves difficulties of an under the contract and calls in question the motives. of men as well as the consequences of their acts. Much has been said, and generally with acrimonious spirit, doncerning an ignimonious spirit, doncerning the interference of the Catholics with the affairs of the Whitman mission, and the massacré and its attendant horrors are charged upon the Jesuits It adds nothing to the force of argument, or of fact, to use bitterness in connection with time. The public naturally wish to form the conclusions even on by gone history. It is, therefore, measury to present the facts and give the reader the power to decide for bimself, if blame existed and where it lay

A TRIPPIE MASSACHE

I have not cared to parade the horrors of that massacre to tell how Whitman's corpse was disknored and muthated, and how Mrs. Whitman went resolutely to her doom, almost car riedjover his yet breathing form. The chapter of forrors was not all completed in one day of lorrors was not all completed in one day these was a second massacre, where two sick mesi—Bewley and Sales—were nurdered, probably because the first attered plain words before Joe Stanfield, a (anadian, and a member of Whitman's family, who planned the murder of Whitman's family, who planned the murder of Whitman beforehand with Jée Lewis and the Cavisses, and was active in consummating it. Skil a third massacre was perpetrated on the men from the saw mull, twenty miles distant, after five days for consideration. The three young ladies, Lorinda Bowley, Mary Smith and Susan Kimbali, were claimed by different Indians for wives and prostituted to their lust. I shall briefly review facts that have direct and important bearing, promising that I gather them from the writings of W H (cap, Rov Bromillet, the catholic bistorian, my friend El word Evase, of Tacoing, and dider sources, and that they are matters of fact as positively as seeing is necessary.

WHITMAN MEETS BISHOR IN ANCHOL.

Rarly in the fail of 184. Dr Whitman went to Oregon City for supplies and implements, and while there told Mr Mckiniey that a Cayuse that had rectingly told but they talked of kill ing all medicines men, and as he was greatest of all they should have to begul with him. Me likely said an Indian never spoke in jest, but meant something by it. On his return home, ner Butter creak he met an immigrant train in which was linder J. W. Grim, judo says Whit man came to their campfire and gave them a k, in which he alluded to his own position as dangerous, and thought he should remove from there before many mouths. Beaching I but Walla Walla, he made a friendly call at the fort, where Bishop Hianchet had arrived hepiterber 5. In his pamphlet called "Protestant min Oregon," intendes to desprove ar; commettion of the Catholic priests with the Whitman massacre, Rev Brounliet, of that church says of Whitman's visit at that time. "His countenance here sufficient testimon; as to the agriculou of his heart. He soon shewed by his words that he was deeply wounded by the arrival of the bishop." I know very well, sand he, for what purpose you have one." The decor then continued in the ing all medicing men, and as he was greatest of is wounded by the arrival of the bishop the know very well, and he, for what purpose you have come? The doctor then continued in the same tone to epeak of many though and made a furious charge against the Catholica, accusing them of having persecuted Pro-estants and even of having shed then blood wherever they had prevailed. He said he twould not sell provisions the best had and a vector of he would not ease the based on the same than the same than the same transfer of the would not ease the same transfer of the same tran prevaled. He said he would not sell protesions to the bishep' and protested he would not assist the missionaries onless he saw them in starva-tion." This extract is from a sectarian work said does not correspond with the well known character of Whitman, who made a friendly cal on the priests the very day they moved into their own station, which was two days before the magazira.

MINES AND COLVER MINES man visited them on the 2"th, staying only a few mbments, as he had twenty-live miles to ride Fe reached home only a mininght. He could not have felt very unkindly when he took pains to call on them under such circumstances, and said gave the writer a pressing invitation to call and visit him at an early day. Monday, November 29, Mr. Spalding resited them, and appeared quite gay. He said that Dr. Whitman was undered, the state of the sickness. One of them, called "The Murderer," had threatened to kill him, be all heard Spalding did not believe it. All this is certainly evidence of friendly feeling on the part of Whitman and Spalding, whose last acts were social courtesies towards those who were certainly their opponents. ments, as he had twenty-five miles to ride

If we take Brouler's statement for it, then had no reason to doubt the consequences that Whitman foresaw from their coming. He gave them warning that their coming meant danger to himself. With this warning to influence their course and caution them as to their conduct among the Indians, with whom they were fast gaining influence, we cannot doubt that there was sharp reality between the two sects and their missions antagonized.

was sharp rwairy between the two sects and their missions antagonized.

Broullet states that the chief, who was to give them land insisted that the mission should be near Dir Whitman's November i a council was held a. Fort Walla Walla between the history and dignese. It is said it was there proposed to drive Whitman away and give the (atholica his pace Thomas Mickay states "One of the chiefs told the bishop they would send the loc or off erry soon they would give the bishop he shouse if he wished The bishop and they would not take the doctor a house there was room for two missions. Mickay was a Catholic, and his evidence was for the Catholic fathers.

The history of Dr Marcus Whitman posses

for the occasion. THE LIE ABOUT ME RODGERS That other story that Mr Rodgers, being wounded, had a promise of his life and hereopen made a confession that the Indiana had been poisoned, stating various particulars that an Indian came in the room afterwards who did an Indian came in the room afterwards who did not know of his coofession and the promised immunity and shot him—all this is false. There is direct testimony that Rodgers full out of doors, pierced with many balls, and did not speak afterwards. He could have had no lower to make such a confession. One of the survivors says she saw him all the time, and after his was first shot be never uthered a word of these survivors says she saw him all the time, and after his was first shot be never uthered a word of these raisehoods are easily disproved, and the marder stands out as a cold-blooded atrootify, sincellered by a single fact for mitigate its horrors or to shield its actors. So far as the Catholic releases are concerned, it is only natural to believe that their efforts against Dr. Whitman and crimstant opposition to him, their den ancistion of him and efforts to supplant him, had influence with the savage Cayuser, who know only to serve one's friends by slaying their entennel. They had no appreciation of any an agolust that did not end in externing them.

PAIDENCE OF A CAVESE CHILL During the Cayuse war Col tilliam had the testimony of Islanus, or Stikes, luken, one of it a most reliable of all the Indians, and I was preserved in the journal of Mr McLau, his Irwate secretary thas confirms the fact that Jo Lewis told them, the doctor was reisoning private secretary Stakes confirms the feet that Jo Lewis told them the doctor was possoning them He siys the priests came and got to quarreling with the doctor about doctrine. Fresh said what the other tength would take them to hell. The six mess came and as the doctor did not care them they went over to the priests and what the other tength would take them to the priests himself (it was an Indian olige near Whitman's) to ask the priest hidse of and hear with his own pars if it was true o not. He was told that the priests were sent from God blve Crows told that the priests were sent from God blve Crows told that the priests were sent from God blve Crows told that the priests had assured him that the doctor was poisoning them and then he (Stikke) Televacia, After that they killed two sick men. He asked the Indians if Whitman gave us onson to make us hick, how was it the Americans got sick? They asked the priest to find the polson the doctor gave them After searching among the doctors made nesh to true! The bottle with something white is it, and said "Here it is." That is what Stikke's leard. The priest then told them that it as Whi man had a fathen in the states who give poison to people there, and that he sent this to her to poison them with then they all bellewed. "Les buried the priest, to de not believe the doctor was cossoning them. He thought they brought the sickness from California, where they had been, and many Cayuses had died in the way home. was specified in the interaction of boing present. He was on his way to Whitman's when Rev Brounlet overtook him with the terible news and be hengage, to reach Wallot or Fort Walls Wallo, after great suffering an exposure. The far that his life was thus save is considered proof of the priests innochace by some, and others say it was their pulicy to have such an act to quote in their two defense.

MEZ PLANCE TESTIMONY If Indian testimony is to count in this matter much more confidence should be placed in the word of the two Nez Perce ob efa who were present and interfered to save its One of present and interfered to save life. One of these chiefs was Buffalo Horn, who was killed in the late Nez Perce war, when Joseph took the field Perriq Whitman tells of a white man the field Perrin Whitman tells of a white man to whom Buffalo Horn (or Buck Horn) said that the priests told the Cayuses to kill the missionaties. While I consider that the evidence of this Nez Perce circle is more cellulate than that of any Cayuse, I still consider if very unsafe to take such testimon. It must all come through an interpreter, and in translation some misun destanding may occur. We may ecore it as we do their superstitions and give it hearing without the credence we attach, to be worde of civilized men, who more completely unterstand

Had the case been reversed I feel the that Whitman and Spalain; would have left the cabrice church in possessan of its field to work or logic of results untimbered. As it was, these teachers of Christianity, men who had left civilized society to benefit savages, gave those savages a spectaclic fit teachers from he same gozel of "peace on sertly good will o man," who were all called Christians but who were engaged in a warfare of wordy dequirelation and obtraction. If Whimman and Spalaling had come into the country and had found Blanchet and his pleas at work on the Walla Walla, they should quietty, and in friendimest, have gone elsewhere and left the (attaches in undisturbed possession of a fleid they had successfully eccapsed. There was a general feeling prevalent that the induced of the process was felt in the terrible access at Wailintup, November 23, 16" Mr Donglas and others take pains to give the Indian's version of their complaints. One serious charge was that three Indians took medit the of Whilman and all three died, though one was a well man who gave himself for the experiment. When the Indians stated their case to flow Orden they forgot this story of Jo Lowis had not yet invented it. No mention was then made of it. No person of common sense will televot that with their overpowering suspicion and superstition any well Indian could have been in duced to undergo this test, it was a lie, shale up for the occasion.

This made her cry for hours afterwards. Of course we'cr most jodge what the relations of the priests were with the Caputes anton much danger attentied them. They must have been in extreme body fear to putify their non intervention in favor of the captives, and especially to protect Miss Bewley when she was under the bishop acoust feet.

AFTER BESTORY OF JO LEWIS What became of Jo Lewis, the arch fierd, who instigated and aided these horrors, is not reliably known. He was shrewl enough to know that he was certain to be purshed if he know that he was certain to be purabled if he remained, so he took an early opportunity to return to Hoise. Mr. Incident said he did so, and Mr McDhua d, não of the Hudson Ray company (at Fort Hai probably), says that when in the mountains with a company of United states troops, he ki et the guide of that a impany and was himself shot. It is regretable that he could not have heen taken, tried, convicted and executed, as so se just return for all his he lish deeds. It must be rement bered that on the arrival of Bisbop I lunchet, in "spin ner, their was no serious such; se wristing among whites or Indians. The measles was supposed to originate among the people, here from its existence in various companies of immigrants who passed through. At lewis is said to have been one of a company of imm grants that was see infected Matters were non uncomfortable condition be fore, and whet his pestilence seried up in them all were helpless. The superstitious minds of the swapers selzed every vanings the pestilence gave them, and by ald of Jo Iswis, and I standed and victobias lunk, they rrew to be lieve that they were poleoned. The massacre came as a result of the conspiracy of these ren egades.

Summing up our syldence we find apparent proof that the Catholics and their friend, Mr McRean, were trying to gain possession of the Whitman risksion station, and for that purpose were interf-ring with the Indians and trying to whemen these states, and for that purpose were inter-ring with the Indians and trying to undermine the Protestant eachings. Methan predicted only shortly before the nurder that it would hap an, in the presence of Mr and Mrs Kimsey Whitman feit that the presence of a Catholte in sisten, so near, meant trouble for him. The first expression of all concerned on nearing of the messacre was that the priests were implicated. The doctor had left it, the previous winter, for the indians by popular vote to decide if he should go or stay, and they nearly all said stay. The firse half-breeds made use of the fact that the messles became a positiones, to make the Indians, believe they were prisoned. The priests, by lefacus's evidence, seem to have confirmed this impression, as we have shown Affer the nurder, a priest pretended, he says to find the preson, and said how it came to Mrs Whitman. After this letacus says they determined to kill two sick men. That the Catholic priest directly instigated the murder, i do not believe; that their conduct towards Whitman and teachings of the Indians, undermined Protestantans and encouraged them to the massacre, seems protable.

spalding's is compromising also the testi near of Sukas is damaging to the Catholic side The murderous treachery of Wit man's Cath-olic employee is another unfo tunate mat-ter for them to explain, but Broullet-tries to do it in the pampilet. The only way to deal with human frailty and The only way to deal with human frailty and weakness is to cast the mantle of charty over the acts of mon and make the best of their motives. I pufer this course to any more right criticism but history must rive its record faithfully. The historian need not necessarily at as judge and jary. The fact of pestilence coming mong them, as it did, had all to do with the ultimate resul. With that means the three half breed could miame the minds of their in dian allies, and no doubt hid so as they dever could have joile under ordinary circumstances.

As he hunsel's said at the time, a small company of Americans would not have necessived any attention a large party would have meant war, and of deliverance. It is possible that more lives would have fallen only for the judicious and homans colurse pursued by Gor Douglas, and Peter riseou Ogden. While it may be natural to criticise the excuses made for a clean and the Indians thanselves, it is right, while we examine the large to award to. The Hunday and We cannot do too much sonor o the conduct Indians themselves, it is right, while we ex emine the facts, to award to the Hudson Bay company credit for redeeming the prisoners, for no action of Americans could so well or so soon have accomplished that result

On Tulesday evening the promenale coupert, for which Mosers Pars is a Bray had made such great efforts, came of at Masonit hall. The affair was an innovation of leparture from the ordinary round of tails and parties here in Portiand. To have been entirely a success it should have been given in a moch large in liding, and it is to be seriously dust ted f any suitable building could be procured here. In the real sense of the term "promended concert" there should be space away and separate from the dancing foot to permit of persons so desiring to wander around during the readering of the musical selections for los ance, some large grounds with bleasant while and above platform had it, some other sol, would have been much more tails, and arbors, with a dance' platform had it, some other sol, would have been much more to the purposes. The undertaking, however, was nost craditable to Messa. Pursons & Bray, for never before in Portland has such perfect dance music been more fluorested so they for never before in Portland has such perfect dance music been furnished as by the rimericade orthestra of fit from paces led by Mr. Chas. Mrs Lily Deversaux Bake was laughed at once by the Eastern press because she carried her women's rights ideas so far as to write a love syoning in the set of a case to the man, and marries him. It is not easy to see any outrage on common seenes in this behavior, allough it is a direct slap in the face of Mrs. (rundy to deteil man, as the phrase goos, over "kissee and tells," and no henorable man would refuse to respect and keep sacred the confessed affec-tion of an upright woman even if he was not prepared to return it. It would be a foliah thing to confess such a feeling to any but an honorable man, but no more foolish then it would be for a man to confess an upright affec-tion for a woman who was disbonomble enough to abuse his secret. If a woman is ready to trust her soul and body with a man for life she certainly can trust him with the confession of her affection for him. A woman might make a mistake in such an asknowledgment, and so might a man, but it would not be half so serious a mistake as it would be to marry a person who could not be trusted to honorably preserve and keep sacred such a confession. Probably as a matter of fact many a woman has directly or indirectly made such a confession, when she felt confident she was dealing with a man if refined and honorable sentiments. No man out a boor or mean creature w nid treat such a revelation severwith such respect and tendere more than a decent woman would sneer on the adewalk at an inpuest fellow who had loved her and ought her in prarriage only to be refused

The answer is that it is well to be practical, and yet it is not well to be so practical as to for get the human nature is not made up solely of utilitar an forces and faculties that find no earthly satisfaction save in the pursuit of pleasure or the possession of power. There is a central fire in human nature that glows with the fervent heat of the spiritual forces of senti ment and emotion, which feed on the deeds and words of those who have wrought, taught, worms or these with have wronger, weight, fought an taken, not for the increase of themselves, but have wrestled with hardship for hour ris aske, have faced death for a noble cause as resolutely as any miser ever dut for gold, or deepot for hower. THE NICER' IN THE FENCE

There is the usual man relations at the Eat of certain excellent people who Lairly perspire with indignation over the diversity of marriage and divorce laws in the various tates. There are adozen systems of divorce aws in active operation, and in the marriage laws there is about the same confusion in New York the law provides that the party in fault in a divorce shall be prohibited from mar rung again, but the lighest state court has de-cided that the penalty has no force beyond the limits of the state, so that the party in fault can nul if the legal prohibition by simply stepping across the state line. Men have seen conducted of bigamy in New York who, in 4 neighboring state, would be rated as stogie ud marriage-able. A citizen of the United States, who goewith his wife from Mange to Lo islane, passes in eucresson under a dezen diffe ent systems of law on the subject of marriage and divorce, so tha a discontented has and or wife could proably get legally divorced during the trip from Portland to Now Orleans The ribodox remedy or this and confusion of I gislation, that ought to be identical throughout the states, is the passage of uniform laws for marriage and divo ce by the several sintes. It is said that a national law on this su ject is not within the sais ing powers of cong ess, and oven if it were constitutional, neither could sight a law be paesed, nor could a constitution? tirected to the same end, he ratified by the states black marriages, and in Virginia persons, whi have eft the state and been married where mixed marriages were legally parmitted, hars returned to the Old D m nkon, so pecting to his a macer the protection of the principle that a marriage valid where made, a valid everywhere only to find themselves pu in jail, because they left the state to marry in spite of its law ( course no Northern state would accept a law or constitutional amendmen ithat permitted such an outrage, and no Southern state would accept a law or amendment that made it implestbe to inflict ast such an outrage, and every democratic legislature would be dragooned by the bouthers democracy to reject any constant thouse amendment that contemplated the cur tailment of the right of the Sout 1 to make every while woman stand in law as the concubine while woman stand in law as the consumine as a cred in an, who, under the I was of the in re-enlightened borth, had made he has wife. The same of position would defeat the passage and upliform marriage law by c agrees, so it, the advocates of uniform narriage and divides law are met at the very outse of their com-mendable efforts by the pregressible negro-whose quirtical countenance eachs out from every pointical fence. The North would re-accept a black code, staute a constitutional amountment, and the democracy of of deferent for the South would refuse any guendment that promptly punished by the per tentiary needed social reform would become a bettle, and the South would foce a dividen-not on the reforms a briac merets, but on 14 ms row question of race prejuges that is set; the plague supt of her cle lization, tanting at 1 tartishing on re or less every good thing she touches. SIMMER ATRANGEMENTS FOR COAST TRAVEL.

The O. R. & N. Co.'s fine, steel steamer Olympian will be put in service between Portland, Atoria, Ilwaco and Cauby, running Lrugh without transfer and connecting at Astor a with the Alice for Clatsop beach. The service will commence about June 19 and she will randown on Tuesiay and Thursday, leaving Astoriest at 83% A. M. and on Saturday at 2°P. M. Full particulars will be auneunced later. In addition to giving these humesed facilities for reading the semmer records, the company has decided to endeavor to build up the business by lowering the round trip rates, and will make the round trip good for the season to Astoria $2.50, to Illwaco or Cauby $3.00, and on Saturdays special excursion tickets will be soit, good for retorn until the following Monday, at $2.00, to either Asioria, liwaco or Fort Camby.

It is expected that this reduction in rates will prove to be an incentive to largely increased traffic between these points.

EXCITING RASE RALL GAME.

Exciting last early days.

Exciting last early days and this season to withers an amateur base ball game gathered at the false pesterday aftermoon to witness a contest between two rullroad nimes, or a composed of the passenger men who have offices on Wathington street and the other of the Ash street men. It was a close and exciting game from beginning to end. The score at the et dof the fourth himing shood 4 to 4, and so continued till the last half of the last inning, when the Ash streeters secured one run and the game. Most of the papers had been players in the game, Most of the papers had been players in the game with a first base, Carson's curved pitching, which puzzled everybedj except Readman, who made four safe hits, and Mead's fine stadding at short. Bully was 3 mem her of the thicago White Stockings in 17-14, and has not forgotten how to play ball, by an menns, this base running was particularly ad mired. Ed it yons umpired the game most sat isfactorily, and the usual "kitching" of batter on called strikes was not heard once. There will probably be a return game at an early day.

Now this time I tell tyou of I was going take her to the fladgire. She was very fond of the theagtre, and I'd said we'd go the first evening I could fix i. So it was to be of a Wednesday or a Saturday, and if i couldn't let her know—her being in Fast Boston—I was to de tie best I could her being reacy to go one of them two nights quitting recable and matto call for her. So, of a Wednesday I couldn't go, for my chief he sent me out tricing trouble under Charles river bridge for a wire was down from the ice that bethered us considerably, and I was to work late and dreached through—and it was tarnation cold—and when I get home to Russel street and get my supper and ... no dry close, and dewach, I get nome to Russe I street and get my supper and, into dry close, and decent to show myself to her it was going on to fine e'clock, so I had to put it off. So it come Saturday night and I got ready carly, for it was a mild night and pleasant, and I was in a numy, and I hurried over to East Boston, and I fell happy, the way a man does when lies or includes the way a man does when he's going to see his girl, for I hadn't seen her since Monday, and it seemed to me as if it was a good while.

So when I got there to ber father's house—for her father is a spin-cutter in Digger & Downses murble-yard, and he does a steac v business and trought her up most stency business and trought her up most partikkeler, and sent ict through the grammar school and talked about the high, and I've rothin' agaist him only for marrying of a step-mother that Anxie didn't like; I don't know's I ever blamed har, for she had the neurology done up in lannel bandages of a gray tolor like to make you wish she wasn't there—when house this night I tel you to take my girl to the theorytre—ma an, she wouldn't go with me.

Not I'll tell you. Whilst I was walking an and down dutride and raging to myself, I saw a man come up and ring her docted. I saw a man come up and ring her docted. He come quite sudden to my sight for there was a street-light opposite her floor, and he come flash beneath it all to once. He was ragged up in all his Sanday close and he had blars ad curly hair, and a was a handsome fellow, and I did. 't head no apritiboal mejum to tell me it was Char by Scattergood. Worse take him!

She come to the door herself. She did. She wasn't taking care of no step-baby. She had her things on, and her little hat set i lewise on her short hair, and she wore a little green gown she had, her Sunday gowr with finin's on it made of fur or feathers, and there sho stands, for she seemed to be going somewheres, and I heard him say:

"Hilloa, Nan!"—for he did, he called her Nan! But I had always called her Annic. She never put her had on the side of her head for my. She never stood that way, with her hand against her—that silly little boy is a way—with me. She'd been all girl to me. But she says:

"I illoa Charly!" just as if she'd been hand for fall it was so silly, she looked so pretty, and her dimple looked so, standing here, ilcould have killed him.

Bu ma'am, when she come to shut the door, and I see him in the front energy parainst the entry light, I saw him reclin' in boside her and I said, "He's drank."

Well. Shection't go anywhere with him for I watched to see; maybe the had the sense to make out his condition," maybe her father wouldn't let her—for I knew her father was to nome and would look after her—and so I come away.

I come away and home i come acrost the ferry, and I locked up at the stars, for it was such a plensant night, and I'd been so happ; coming over—and I went from her to mit, and ther I went from mad to terrer—ist he should get her after all. And I cursed him, for I could have killed him. I cursed him for I could have killed him. I cursed him for I could have killed him. I seemed to say so him:

cersed himson that ferry, all the way, seemed to say to him:
"Unarley Sectlergood, you've got my girl. Sie ain't your girl. She's mine. You ain't fit to have her! Let her be! I'll fling you over loard. Let us be!"
For it seemed as if he was on deck beside me, and! felt about in the dark as fi'd git him. And! I lung my urms across the railing he if it was I flang him over. And looked down as if I see him goin guader. And! watched the paddle whe last if it draws wed him in. But I curse! him, for I hated him.

I caiak I had a sort of fever in my brain for I hever wanted to kill a creature before in all my days. If it was an old hen, I didn't like to do it. But, ma'am, I could have sumped or him or if ''d a seen him under a locomo tive injine I wouldn't have cared. I hated Char ey Senttergood. I wanted him to die. I went from mal to murder in my heart upon the ferry boat, so help me God.

Mt, am, where do you think them things come from planth! into a man's soul? If he was a sheady man and tried to do his doots, and iked his fellow creatures and had girlle thoughts like other folks and never wisk id no harm to no man. Seems as if it was a brain fever—when you love a girl. Seems as if you was an and man if it is a g.rl. Seems as if you was an and man if it is a g.rl. Seems as if you were mad man if it is a g.rl. Seems as if you meet no hoter poly be!

Will. He wasn't on the ferryboat. He was setting there beside of her in her futher's setting room. Drunk. And calling of her Nan.

Soil didn't murder him, for it wasn't handly; and I went home, for my sister that was a widder ady made me some catnipite and I give it to the cat, and so I went to bard, and went to sleep. But give that then than a guilated. If seemed a pity to waste 'em.

Now that night there come a storm. It was a sleet storm. If the lyou about it. It sleeted like the Evil all that night, and own anorning, if you was to look out, it was like looking out on a world of ice that mack you think of n creature frozen dead; like t was the corpse of the world. It was the worst sleet storm we had that winter, for I had a reason to remember.

I said I'd tell you what a moulde mun is.

"I'm obliged to yru," she says, "but I sain't a going. I don't feel like it."

"But I've got the tickets," says I, for she'd never spoke blee that to me before. "Its the play you said;—its the Tearl of the Necktic Factory." For she had a shine to see the "Pearl of the Necktic Factory." For she had a shine to see the "Pearl of the Necktic Factory." It had run a hundred hights; she'd talked about it, a sight, and so I'd got the tickets.

I give $1 for them two tickets.

"Why, what's the matter. Annie?" says I, for she didn't say hub to me. "What is a lisyou, dear;" trake by win; maybe it give way under thelice; or it's leaten down by snow; or it's struck by ligating; or it's crossed some-wine so by somebody class's accident-some setting room, ing of the baby in this front channel, we was by ourselves.

So she turned her pritty head and bloked at me and then she ooks away? Seems as if she dad and didn. Seems as if she would and wouldn't believe it of a telephone wire, now if can sharl if it sets should and shouldn't blive way a woman does.

And then I see a sight I never saw before nor I don't knows I'd care to see it every liminary more in a neither.

It was a reey high pole. I knew that pole. I'd been up it, tique grain. It was an eighty foot pole, it was all glared over with ice, and it snok begainst the wird. The wires were down.

Up at the top of that theretpole there was a man. I'd ought to say there hong a man, for quick as I set eyes on in I knew it was all up with that man. It was a troubte man gone up to guy the pole over and he d gone alone for no ody was with him only the force to work to the worth ards, where the other poles in I all gete cown.

My beart come into my mouth where I saw that man, and my matrice froze within me, for when I looked I saw him fling alis arms—that way—andidoppie. When I saw him, for he fell for ards on its face against the cross-arms of the poles, both arms about it, and kind off cone together like a jack-knife—so—and there he hung, as helpess and as senseless as the buried dead, am eighty feet above the ground.

"He's dead!" cries the horse car driver. But the conductor sail, 'I'e's drint!"
